ABOUT US

At Sasi International, we believe every meal can be a step toward a greener tomorrow. Since 2008, our mission has been to reconnect people with nature by transforming fallen palm leaves, reclaimed coconut shells, and natural reeds into elegant, eco-friendly tableware and drinkware. What begins as nature's waste is reborn as purposeful products: sturdy plates, bowls, timeless cutlery, and now, reed straws that offer a sustainable alternative to plastic and paper. Handcrafted from naturally growing reeds, these straws are durable, reusable, and completely biodegradable, ensuring that every sip carries the essence of nature without compromise. Guided by the principles of organic living, we are committed to reducing plastic waste, protecting the planet, and offering safe, chemical-free alternatives that are kind to both people and the earth. Every piece we create is 100% natural, biodegradable, and compostable, returning to the soil as gently as it came from it. Our designs merge elegance with sustainability, blending traditional craftsmanship with modern sensibilities. They are not just tableware and drinkware but a reminder that mindful choices create meaningful change. From family gatherings to large-scale events, Sasi products—from plates and bowls to reed straws—bring nature back to the table, encouraging people everywhere to dine and sip with awareness and intention. At Sasi, we don't just make tableware—we craft a lifestyle that serves the world without harming it, proving that sustainability and style can coexist beautifully. Together, we can reimagine everyday living and leave behind a legacy of care for generations to come.

The result is tableware that is as beautiful as it is functional — strong enough for everyday meals, yet refined enough to grace festive gatherings, weddings, and celebrations.
